Environmental Policies of Italy

Italy is pushing initiatives designed to reduce black carbon emissions, particularly in the transportation sector.

The goal is to reach a low carbon impact economy, but at the same time, it's very important the valorisation of the territory and the communities that inhabit it.

Something about recycling

Separate waste collection is used for the effective recycling; Lately the waste generation has also decreased on average. From Northern Europe, eco-sustainable construction is increasingly spreading to Italy too.

IT' A TIME FOR:
„GOOD TO KNOW!”

unusual houses

In Italy we can see houses made of Pre-compressed straw which are beautiful, healthy, economical, anti-seismic and also fireproof.

Turin being eco

The universities of Bologna and Turin are the most sustainable in Italy: in Turin there is also a center that organizes many training events to promote environmental sustainability.

Eco plants everyday

The Lombardy Social Agriculture network brings together organizations that deal with shared vegetable gardens, teach people to waste less food, transform the products they grow with natural methods and recover ancient seeds.

Green cities

Cities with the most vegetation:

1. Trydent
2. Mantua
3. Bolzano
4. Pordenon
5. Parma
