Project's budget of 36 605 Euro.

The project aimed at the further introduction of the 3.0 education, which is characterized by blurring the lines between teachers and students so that we are all discoverers of information and the creators of new knowledge. Direct participants of the project were teachers of foreign languages (English and German) and teachers of science and other subjects (history, geography, IT, Polish, physics). Indirect participants were and still are both other teachers and students taught by them.

The project is the result of our needs identified in European development plan: professional development of teaching staff, school internationalization, activating students and teachers, increasing number of international projects of different types, shift from traditionally based learning and teaching into discovery one, inquiry based new education in which both teachers and students cocreate and codiscover knowledge, wider offer of Content Language Integrated Learning

All participants received Europass document confirming acquired skills and knowledge. Within the project we used methods of active participation, good practice examples, self-presentation, creative methods of learning and teaching, self-evaluation, observation of model classes, inquiry based methods.
